Seniors continue the annual Marist tradition of taking a trip to Ashland to see plays and explore the city

By Mackenzie Henshaw

This Wednesday and Thursday, a group of seniors travelled down to Ashland to see two plays at the Shakespeare Festival and spend time exploring the town.

Led by English teachers Andy Oldham and Lizzie Petticrew along with drama teacher Tony Rust, the seniors learned the ins and outs of theatre and saw two performances: William Shakespeare's Julius Caesar on Wednesday night, and Harper Lee's To Kill A Mockingbird on Thursday afternoon. In addition to theatre, the group was given time to see the town of Ashland, eat at various restaurants, spend time at the Stratford Inn and walk around Lithia Park.

The trip provided an educational look at the theatre business, as well as an experience for the seniors to spend some more time with each other as graduation nears.

Spartans Stroke Way to Solid State Finishes

By Ray Ferrari

After successful spring seasons and district championships, the Marist varsity golf teams came oh so close to bringing Marist its first state title of the year.

At Emerald Valley Golf Course in Creswell Monday and Tuesday, the girls varsity golf team tied for second place at the 5A level. Led by Junior Frankie Souza who finished 12th overall and junior Tierney Werner and freshman Taylor Marsh who tied for 13th overall, the Spartans only fell short to Summit High School. Other competitors were juniors Sami Pitts and McKenzie Hughes.

At Quail Valley Golf Course in Banks, the boys team finished third in the state. After trailing by only three strokes after Monday, the boys couldn't overcome the deficit Tuesday, falling to the Spartans of Corvallis by 12 strokes. They were led by junior Brent Pollock who finished fourth overall. Senior Carson Kiesewetter, juniors Nate Krause and Bishop Dean, sophomore Wyatt Dean, and freshman Billy Pollock were the other team members.

With hardly any seniors on either team, both golf programs are confident looking toward the future years of Marist golf.

Be True To Your School

"Be True To Your School" was the theme for the annual Marist High School auction that took place on campus last Saturday night. With parents and staff sporting Marist gear or their own high school gear, this auction was surely full of spirit.

The generosity of the Marist community on this important night not only helped with the general expenses of the school, but also aided the financial assistance of the foreign language and science mobile labs this year.

Current Marist parents Mike and Tina Auld along with former Marist parents, Molly and Jeff Elder, were the auction chairs this year. Aside from the great administrative work from them and the Marist Development Office, over 200 student and parent volunteers lent a hand, showing everyone what it means to be true to your school.

Wait... WHAT?!

By Micah Stratton

Tuyen Bolton has performed a dance in front of 64,607 people. Wait, What?!? Yes, she traveled to San Diego with a dance team to be in the Holiday Bowl halftime show. Later that week, they also danced in the Big Bay Balloon Parade. Both were nationally televised. Can I get a "what what!"

Can and Bottle Drive

By Jack Watson

Each month Marist holds a can drive and this month $432 worth of cans were donated with help from freshman history teacher Peter Muilenburg, who pushed his students to collect for the project.

This money goes to Stove Team International, an organization that provides affordable stoves to people in Central America because 70% of the world still uses wood fireplaces in their households. The last can drive will be held on June 9th, so get those cans and help!

Mathletes Compete

By Michael Busse

Last Saturday, Marist took a team of seven students to Oregon State University for the first time to compete in the Oregon Invitational Mathematics Tournament, taking a rigorous hour-long test, and competing in a team problem solving round. No Marist student placed.

Marist students did well in the qualifying round, sending the all four of the local competitors in calculus and three in pre-calculus.

"It was fun. The questions were harder than I thought they would be though," said senior Gerald Rouleau.
