The Mr. Spartan team goes all out in their final week of fundraising through a class competition, basketball, and the pageant

By Ray Ferrari

After three months of fundraising and preparation done by twenty students and three adult moderators, Mr. Spartan week is finally here concluding with the annual Mr. Spartan Pageant tomorrow night at 7 p.m.

This week, Mr. Spartan team members went around the school to each religion class making a final push in what they called "3 Days for the Babies." Raising money for the Mr. Spartan Program along with Project Starfish, the winning class will receive a free pizza party next week.

Wednesday, the nine Mr. Spartan guys competed against staff members in a basketball game. In a tough, competitive, no mercy event that was close the whole game, the Mr. Spartans came away with a one-point victory. The night also consisted of the nine guys singing The National Anthem and senior Coach Chris Daniel putting on a display of energy and anger towards his team.

Saturday night, this year's program will wrap up with the culmination of all the hard work put in over the past weeks. With a theme of "Late Night with Mr. Spartan," and a wide variety of skits and segments, the show will surely impress.

Prior to this week, the team has raised money through a dodge ball tournament at Pleasant Hill H.S. the Mr. Spartan Dance, the Ballin' for the Babies 3 on 3 basketball tournament, a karaoke party at Track Town Pizza, and the sending out of hundreds of letters asking for donations.

The Mr. Spartan contestants are seniors Ray Ferrari, Kevin Haskin, Carson Kiesewetter, Taylor McAdams, Tate McCurdy, Logan Silver, Micah Stratton, Tyler Wagner, and Blaine Patrick Werner.

Cornwell to Camp Joshua

By Helen Kwak

During Spring Break, junior Jacob Cornwell represented Marist High School at Camp Joshua, a program intended to train youth in the pro-life movement.

"I came out of Camp Joshua with a greater knowledge of how to debate the issue in an intelligent way," said Cornwell.

Cornwell's expenses were paid by a grant that the Marist for Life Club attained this year. He encourages students to take advantage of the opportunity and participate in the camp next year.

Hamlet Relief

By Tressa Parra

In an effort to help the victims of the recent earthquake in Japan, the cast of Hamlet raised over $1000 for the Red Cross earthquake relief. During every intermission, members of the cast came in into the audience and collected donations. The check will be delivered Red Cross this week.

Marist Theatre usually raises money for the entire Marist Arts program but has done well adapting to global needs. They also raised money for Haiti during last year's musical.

ASB Campaigning

By Riley Kulm

Next Wednesday, Marist students will vote on their ASB officers for the 2011-12 school year.

The candidates include primarily sophomores and juniors competing for the various ASB positions. Students wishing to run for office must get thirty signatures from fellow students, signatures from each teacher they have a class with, and in addition signatures of five other staff members. Candidates will have the chance to give speeches to the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes during an assembly on Wednesday.
