Students dance the night away at the Homecoming Dance

By JJ Anderson '20

To conclude this year's Homecoming Week, the Homecoming Dance was held last Saturday in the main gym.

The theme for this year's dance was selected by the student council as a beachy theme with the catchy name—"The Beach Ball."

Marist students joined together to have a night filled with dancing with their fellow classmates and friends.

The school brought in past graduate Caleb Coulombe '16 to DJ the event.

"Homecoming was great this year because of the great music and mashups mixed by the DJ" said junior Sam Eagen.

At the dance, students also had the option to get their pictures taken in a photo booth with their friends.

To sum up the fun-filled night, senior Isaac Milovich said, "I felt like the star to the movie in my own film."

COMING TOGETHER FOR CLASS MASSES

The student body divides into their classes to celebrate Mass

By Talon Larson '22

On Wednesday the student body finished the day of school with class Masses.

The freshmen began their time together with a five-minute slideshow of their Lock-In slideshow. Fr. Michael Antony then celebrated Mass and delivered a thoughtful message on how if we act with the love of God in mind, the world will be a better place. They concluded their time with watching their music videos from the Lock-In even though one was missing.

Fr. Ron Nelson celebrated Mass with the sophomores and juniors and had with a touching homily about how bodies are made to be used for good and not evil. At the end of Mass, history teacher Jon Nuxoll shared memorabilia from his life and experiences with community and advised that in order to withstand the changes of time, you should anchor yourself to something lasting.

This is the only mass of the year in which the classes are split up and not together as a whole school.

"It was different only having half the people, but I didn't like it because there is less community. Only having one class is better honestly" said sophomore Nick Elliott.

Fr. Mark Bentz celebrated Mass for the seniors and delivered an energetic homily about how if you live your life for God and not for yourself you will be happy in the long run.

ATHLETIC HALL OF FAME

On the night of the homecoming football game, past staff, coaches, alumni, and their families gathered in the main gym to celebrate the Inaugural Athletic Hall of Fame.

One of the many great aspects of the night was the joining of past generations and graduate classes. Former athletic director and boys basketball coach, Corey Anderson, was very pleased with the turnout and was very happy to see many of his former players, parents and colleagues.

"I had so many great conversations with people from kids that I had coached along with their parents, coaches that I worked with, teachers past and present and of course so many behind the scenes supporters that were alums and past parents," said Anderson.

There was an inductee for each of the decades that Marist has been an institution:

Coach Ed Hummel whom the sports complex is named after started coached football, basketball and baseball at St. Francis in 1960 and was present on the sidelines until his death in 2017.

The 1970's were represented by the 1973 undefeated football team. This team holds a special place in Marist lore as they brought home Marist's first state championship. Along with that, they also were the originators of the now Marist school motto, "We Are One."

The motto, "We Are One," has become a fixture within the Marist community. Each team chants the phrase during competition and is embodied by students and faculty members on retreats and other school wide events.

"Marist is and always has been such a close-knit community," said Anderson. "We Are One" is, and always will be an important facet of the Marist community.

Joe Holvey, graduate of 1981, was a very accomplished athlete in his time at Marist. In the three sports he competed in football, basketball and baseball he earned First Team All-League in all three along with a Parade All-American for football his senior year.

Representing the 1990's, Kristina (Andersen) Mosley '97 was inducted for her outstanding play on the hard court. Throughout her high school career, she was awarded First-Team All State in 1996 and 1997 and then State Player of the Year in 1997. Along with that, she also won two state championships with the girls basketball team.

The most recent Marist graduate of the inductees was Marist softball standout, Kayla (Braud) Berney '09. In Berney's time at Marist, she was a very decorated softball player, gathering two State Player of the Year awards, and two state championships. A personal achievement that Berney accomplished in her time here was a 103-game consecutive hit streak, a record which is still standing today.

The Athletic Hall of Fame Committee, who voted on this year's inductees, consisted of current coaches and staff, along with nine Marist graduates, ranging from 1971 to 2007.

NATIONAL HONORS SOCIETY ANNUAL INDUCTION

Thirty-five juniors and five seniors are welcomed into Marist's chapter of National Honors Society

By Lauren Barry '20

On Wednesday evening, 35 juniors and five seniors were inducted into the Marist chapter of the National Honors Society Organization in a formal ceremony in the Marist gym.

During the opening words given by Andy Oldham, the Assistant Principal of Academic Affairs, he congratulated and challenged the students to "conduct yourselves on campus as if you are applying [to NHS] every day."

This was followed by speeches made by NHS moderator and English teacher, Becky Boyd, as well as the new senior NHS officers, President Griffin Sydow and Vice President Santanna James. The officers expanded on the four core values of NHS with the symbolic lighting of the candles of scholarship, service, leadership, and character.

Principal Stacey Baker, Boyd, Oldham all agreed the value of NHS to Marist is more than a "GPA club," it helps enforce the Marist core values, along with bringing life and purpose to our campus. The positive impact is evident in the responses of the student body.

New junior inductee, Laine Friesen felt honored to be selected as a member of NHS. Returning senior member, Bella Zachem says that "NHS is awesome." Other returning members agreed that they have enjoyed themselves and learned new things through their service with NHS.

One of the highlights of the evening was the compilation of music chosen by Boyd and played while the new inductees signed the official NHS member book. The music consisted of modern pop songs, such as "Just the Way You Are" by Bruno Mars in instrumental form. Boyd took the complement of her musical choices, saying that it was her "feeble attempt to be cool."

The takeaway of the evening was that Mr. Oldham is "not cake", but he "loves the free cake" that the NHS induction ceremony provides... as well as the opportunity and community that it promotes for our school.
